"Frontline's support to the Frimley Health's Well-Led Review through John Deffenbaugh was first class. The facilitated Board session as part of the review was well designed and run very effectively on the day which enabled key issues and areas for future action to be captured effectively. Frontline's knowledge of the provider sector and the wider NHS was invaluable in providing focus to the review and in coming to pertinent conclusions in the final report".

"We were enthusiastic and engaged with Frontline's approach, delivery, methodology and philosophy from our initial meeting and the very focused sessions with the participants have been well-received. There is already a tangible feeling of greater positivity and collegiate collaboration and we look forward to seeing this develop and strengthen. For us, this is about long term benefits rather than short term, one-off projects. We want to provide the opportunity for teachers to develop their leadership skills, to work more effectively with colleagues and to understand themselves better as teachers, as leaders of learning."

"Frontline's knowledge of the business support environment in the north east contributed greatly to producing a programme for the day and identifying discussion topics that were relevant and their personal relationships with many of the participants helped to generate proactive discussion in the workshop groups. Frontline produced a report that skilfully captured the outcomes of the day and suggested next steps. Feedback from participants was very complementary with overwhelming praise for the organisation if the day and Suzanne Hamilton's facilitation of the event"

"The work undertaken by Frontline was excellent and we found them very responsive, efficient and knowledgeable. A particular strength was in their flexibility, and the will to cooperate when asked to take part in related activity out with the initial brief. I have no hesitation in saying I will include them on any appropriate tender lists in the futures."
